In its sixth year, the annual conference continues to generate investor interest throughout the Northeast, Midwest and Mid-Atlantic regions

BUFFALO, N.Y. -- The Founding Committee of the Western New York Investors Conference (WNYIC) announced today that Patrick J. Healy, CEO, of Issuer Advisory Group will be the Keynote Speaker at this year's conference. Mr. Healy will address "the impact of current developments in the equity capital markets upon publicly traded companies". The WNYIC is scheduled from 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, November 5, through lunch on Thursday, November 6, at The Buffalo-Niagara Marriott Hotel in Amherst, N.Y. Mr. Healy will be speaking at the closing lunch on Thursday.

After over a decade as a CFO in the banking industry, Mr. Healy served as a Director of the NASD/Nasdaq, developing issuer driven products and services among other responsibilities. Having literally stumbled upon the idea that publicly traded companies needed an independent market expert upon whom to rely for listing decisions and trading issues, Mr. Healy launched the Issuer Network in 1995. Major corporations weighing their market listing decision utilized his service, to include America Online, Gateway Computer, and Coors. Specialist firms and market makers also utilized the Issuer Network as a way to build stronger business relationships with issuers. In 2002, Mr. Healy became Vice Chairman of Bear Hunter Holdings / Bear Wagner Specialists where he led the firm's overall NYSE business development and issuer services program. In 2005, Mr. Healy relaunched the issuer business as Issuer Advisory Group to address the many changes occurring with the major exchanges.

Mr. Healy received his BA in accounting and economics from Baldwin Wallace College and his MBA from Cleveland State University. A CPA, Mr. Healy appears periodically on CNBC as an issuer expert, is frequently quoted about NYSE and Nasdaq developments, and is a featured character in a recent book "King of the Club - the Survival of the New York Stock Exchange".
